

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The compression molded fuel tank includes a first and second section, each of which is a laminate of at least two dissimilar materials. The sections are affixed together at peripheral portions thereof to form a closed, hollow member with an internal cavity therein, and including an inlet to the internal cavity. The laminate of each section is a compression molded laminate and includes an outer plastic film layer and an inner plastic layer.